PRACTICE FOCUS

Daniel Trujillo Esmeral focuses his practice on providing proactive and preventative counseling and defending for businesses throughout litigation. The dual nature of his practice allows him to partner with clients devise solutions to their legal issues while they focus on growing their businesses.

Daniel's years of experience representing employees gives him a unique advantage when providing counseling to businesses for compliance with employment laws, such as discrimination, accommodation and wage and hour laws. This experience also allows him to anticipate legal pitfalls when preparing and revising employment, severance and non-compete agreements and employee handbooks and policies. His work before state and federal tribunals and administrative boards ensures that businesses are well represented in all aspects of litigation.

Daniel has prosecuted and defended unfair competition claims in courts across the country. He can file or respond to injunctions on minimal notice in state and federal courts. In addition to injunction proceedings, he proactively protects employer and employee rights in counseling and responding to unfair competition claims, including theft of trade secrets, employee raiding, breach of fiduciary duty and violations of state unfair competition laws.

Daniel also has extensive experience negotiating a wide range of issues that arise in severance and employment agreements for managers and executives. This includes addressing issues such as confidentiality, non-compete, non-solicitation provisions and other contentious issues that can arise for managers and executives in establishing or terminating an employment relationship.

Daniel has been active in the community since law school, where he was a managing editor of the George Mason University Civil Rights Law Journal, president of the Student Bar Association and president and founder of the Latino/a Law Student Association. Since then, he has served in leadership roles in the legal, business and non-profit communities.
